

Kathryn proves that Kerry is no barrier to a successful career in make-up world

A KILLARNEY woman has been selected to join the prestigious Daniel Sandler make-up team.

Kathryn O'Neill, a professional make-up artist based in Killarney, is just one of four Irish artists chosen to join the team. She was the only candidate chosen from outside the Dublin area.

Sandler is one of the top make-up artists in the UK with clients including Kate Moss, Naomi Campbell, Jade Jagger and Yasmin Le Bon.

He has created looks for Jenny Packham, Gucci, Tommy Hilfiger and Tom Ford and is a regular expert on TV.

"It's like a dream come true to be able to work for someone as high-profile as Daniel and, yet, still be based in Killarney. I will be assisting him at fashion shows and photo shoots, so it's a great opportunity," Kathryn told The Kerryman.

The Killarney woman's selection followed an intensive selection process: "I was interviewed by Daniel and his business manager Annie Bruce at his studio at Harrods of London and had to do a make over in front of Daniel, which was pretty nerve racking.

"I beat off lots of competition to win a place on the team and it is a great honour," she added.

The idea of the regional team is to bring his Sandler's knowledge and award winning make-up range to women all over the UK and Ireland.

The range is available exclusively at Harrods and from Kathryn and the rest of the team.

She specialises in wedding and special occasion make-up and offers one to one and group make-up lessons in the comfort of the home.

Kathryn also offers a mobile service and can be contacted on (087) 7625800 and Kathryn.oneill@danielsandler.com

A brush with success

Kathryn O'Neill, a professional make-up artist based in Killarney, is just one of four Irish artists chosen to join the Daniel Sandler make-up team.

Photo by Eamonn Keogh

